THE HUBBARD FULLER GENEALOGY

To Maycie Mary Fuller Powell, Daughter of Fred C.
and Jennie Van Dyke Fuller, who through the years, has become a dear friend and faithful co-worker, I gratefully dedicate the Fuller Genealogy.

Hubbard Fuller, his wife Elizabeth, their four children, Laura, Percy, Hiram and Sylvia came to the United States from England in 1802 settling on a farm in Otsego Co., New York.

Laura Fuller married Edmond Skiff a native American. They migrated to Allegany Co. N.Y. Mr. Skiff purchased a tract of land, planning to improve it, and making it their home. There were many Indians--the records say Mrs. Skiff was timid and frightened of the Indians and living in this wild country. After the out break of the war of 1812, they returned to Otsego Co. where they traded the property in Allegany Co, New York State to his father-in-law, Hubbard Fuller for his farm in Otsego Co., N.Y. Lucinda, Benjamin, Elizer, John and Christana were born in the U.S.A.

In 1812 Hubbard Fuller and a part of his family migrated to the new holdings in Allegany Co., N.Y. where Mr. Fuller improved them. He added to his holdings until he was known to have possessed many acres. His daughter, Percy remained in the east, as did Hiram who lived in Penn. until 1815 when he joined the family at Hume, N.Y. Lucinda also remained in the east having married Abner Adams of Pike, N.Y.

At the close of the war of 1812, Luther Couch came to Hume, where he established and conducted a school. He met and fell in love with Sylvia Fuller, daughter of Hubbard Fuller. They were married in 1812.

John and Benjamin, sons of Hubbard Fuller became prominent in Hume, N.Y.

E.R. Fuller, son of Frank Grover Fuller, supplied many of the records collected by his Father over the years, these became the bases for the Fuller Genealogy. Maycie Fuller Powell also became one of my most ardent and faithful collaborators. Having the Family Bible containing many more records, in addition, she visited Cemeteries, Court Houses, Historical libraries and relatives in New York State, any place she thought she could find data and with amazing results. She is responsible for the record of the older generation in the east and bringing the family data up to date. She has worked very hard and I know we are all grateful. Thank you Maycie.

Message To All

The Fuller-Smith Genealogies were compiled and written by Gladys E. Evans Barnett, Great-grand daughter of Samuel C. Smith.

Being an amateur is a handicap indeed, when attempting the construction of any genealogy. For the most part, the records came to me well assembled, but there were others not easily compiled, so if there are errors, I'm truly sorry. I have written them as I read them.

My sincere thanks to every one, you have all been most cooperative and I'm sure everyone will appreciate it as I do. In your genealogy, you have a priceless collection of family records of past and present generations. It is my hope you will continue on with these records. There are blank pages in the back of your book for this purpose and to write in events not found in print.

I would like to hear from any one who cares to write.

Laura Elmina Lents, 4th. child of Cordelia S. and George W. Lents, revives memories as related by her parents, of the families mode of living as children and conditions as they were long ago. These conditions certainly not as to day (1963) with all of our modern conveniences.

Laura's parents came to Iowa shortly after their marriage in 1868, traveling by an Oxen drawn covered wagon and settled on a parcel of unimproved land near Fontanelle, Adair Co. Iowa, a small settlement with few homes and one General Store.

Their first problems were to clear the land for cultivation and the building of a home and outbuildings. Wood was used for fuel and for cooking. Coal was available but expensive. A well had to be drilled also to supply them with water and drawn by a windlass. Candles and oil were used for lighting.

In the fall there was butchering to be done and the curing of the meat to last most of the winter, the vegetables were placed in a root cellar near the house. Wheat and corn were ground for bread.

The cost of living was very high because of the transportation of all other supplies. the nearest railroad was at Casey, Iowa some miles away. It was a long way in those days traveling cross country on unmarked roads in all kinds of weather.

Their mail man came by horse-back from Corning, Iowa, a long trip and he often found it necessary to stay over night in the home of a farmer enroute.

There were some Indians in the area, some came to the door asking for food, especially white flour. If they were given corn meal, they either refused it or threw it on the ground. Not very friendly, seems to me.

Laura's father served in the Civil War, upon discharge he was given the gun he had carried. It was larger than the rifle and quite heavy. He made his own bullets, about the size of a large pea, these were made by melting lead in a long handled dipper over a fire, poured into a mold. An old cow horn was used to keep gun powder in to be used with the ball. The gun was always cleaned after using and placed where the children couldn't reach it.

Fontanelle was formally the county seat (Adair), but was moved to Greenfield about seven miles east, leaving the old court house vacant. It was remodeled and used for a school, this is where the Lents children attended school. The teachers received $26 per month, out of this she paid for room and board of $1.50 per week. As the years passed, living conditions improved.
